

Running Start for Medical Laboratory Careers!

What is Running Start for Careers? It's a program designed to give students direct entry to industry–developed/industry–taught curriculum in career development areas during their critical high school years.

MLT 1296 – Preparation for Medical Laboratory Sciences

May 23 – August 8

Fridays 3:00 – 5:20 p.m.

CNM Main Campus, JS Building and

TriCore Reference Laboratories

located at 1001 Woodward NE

CRN 98314

In this class you will spend time working side-by-side with laboratory professionals. Meet a prerequisite requirement for both the CNM Phlebotomy Certificate and Medical Laboratory Technician AAS Degree Programs.

COURSE HIGHLIGHTS:

- Learn about the medical laboratory, its purpose and function
- Gain an understanding of work done in the medical laboratory and why a science and math background is so important
- Medical laboratory professionals share details about their job such as, key responsibilities, required education, experience, challenges and opportunities
- Students learn methods of behavior and learning techniques aimed at empowering them to become more effective in school and in life. Development of self-confidence, interpersonal skills, and character building are explored as students investigate possible career options within the industry.
- Students spend time in the medical lab, participating in hands-on procedures and working alongside laboratory personnel

No books required, no prerequisites. Students will be expected to provide updated vaccination records and complete a drug screen and criminal background check.
