5. APD Communications—

a. “Snapshot” of Area activities--Foothills Crime Report from APD [appended]

Cdr Rodgers provided a brief report on property and personal criminal activity. The trend continues, that vehicles are being entered and stolen or having items stolen from them; 40% of such thefts involve no force—doors left unlocked or vehicles left running. In particular, weapons are being stolen, due to unlocked or inadequately secured vehicles. On the other hand, violent crimes in Foothills were significantly down—aggravated battery and aggravated assault down approximately 30% and home invasions down by 75%.

6. Featured Speaker: Cdr Shane Rodgers—Introduction to SOP and discussion of Use of Force Policy Statement 2-25-1 and related policies--

Council member Joe Abbin introduced the topic, noting that the manual of procedures has grown from a small book to 2500 pages—an enormous amount of material to be understood by an officer.

Cdr Rodgers provided copies of a PowerPoint presentation on the policy. Basically, he said that the new policy is based on the Supreme Court case (Graham v Connor), which outlined the limits of police use of force in light of the rights outlined in the Fourth Amendment. The new policy emphasizes de-escalation techniques to avoid use of force whenever possible. Force must be “objectively reasonable” and consider the “totality of circumstances.” That is, another officer in the same situation should act in a similar manner, taking into account all the conditions present in the situation.

The degree of force to be used is based on three criteria: the lawful reason for contact (cannot be arbitrary on the part of the officer), the severity of the crime, and the degree of resistance encountered. The goal is surrender without involvement of force. Cdr Rodgers noted that even while most officer actions are appropriate, the effects of a bad arrest makes the news and affects all other officers. Incidents involving use of force are now to be evaluated by supervisors, taking into account the new standards. The evaluation process begins with the officer's own report and continues with examination of videos and interviews with all other officers present, as well as the background of the action. Any controversial cases are to be referred to Internal Affairs.

All procedures are being reviewed (and will be reviewed periodically) for clarity, brevity as well as content; the policies need to be stated succinctly enough that officers in the field can understand and follow them. Extensive reality-based training (i.e., using real-life scenarios) will help officers be able to respond appropriately. During Crisis Intervention Training, if there is an error in a trainee's action, it is noted, corrected, and re-done immediately.

An audience member said that de-escalation should be emphasized by deleting "when possible" wording from the SOP. Another member stated that SOPs should be based on more public input at the Office of Policy Analysis. It was pointed out that the CPCs are attempting to foster more community involvement.

Community Outreach coordinator Nicole Chavez-Lucero said that APD is developing a handout card with instructions on appropriate behavior toward officers, for deaf or non-English speakers.

7. Pulse of the Neighborhoods—reports from CPC members and citizens

Council member Dianne Layden described two auto thefts at her condo complex. Following those events, Crime Prevention Specialist Jill Garcia provided information on how to prevent such incidents in the future. Dianne also described her ride-along, which was very instructive.

There were no new recommendations forthcoming.
