TRENDING:

- Saw increase in residential burglaries over Labor Day holiday weekend. Vacant homes are being targeted whether the owners are on vacation, having renovations done, the homes are under construction or the homes are for sale. This is where good neighbors and neighborhood engagement are key factors. Whether through Neighborhood Watch groups or informally, know your neighbors and share contact information. Let a trusted neighbor know if you will be out of town. Be willing to call police if something at a neighbor's home seems suspicious.

- Call Foothills Substation front office staff to request a Periodic Watch if going out of town; 332-5240 - staff will post the request internally and squads will receive the information as they brief before they go out on their shifts to take calls for service. Officers will drive by and do a visual check if in between dispatched calls for service.
- The amount of valuables, firearms, and personal documents left inside vehicles is staggering. We do not live in a world where this can be our habit any longer. We need to change outdated habits that no longer work. I wish the world were crime-free, but it is not. You will feel less fear and more mastery over your environment if you adopt new habits about securing your property. Remove all items of value and leave nothing visible.

- Crime prevention literature is brought to all community meetings and supplied in Foothills Substation lobby. Literature is also available for downloads off City of Albuquerque web site in Police/Crime Prevention pages if citizens would like to print and share crime prevention literature for their various community groups/meetings. Please download and share!
