Falstaff

Verdi amazed the musical world when he crowned a lifetime of operatic tragedies with this richly comic portrait of Sir John Falstaff, the earl of excess. The score features a flood of melodies, inexhaustible rhythms, and a quicksilver orchestral palette. Verdi's librettist, Arrigo Boito, may have put it best when he said "We got all the juice from that Shakespearean orange, without any of the seeds."

The Marriage of Figaro

Figaro and Count Almaviva are locked in a manly test of strength to see which one of them will be the first to enjoy the pleasures of Susanna's bridal boudoir. Well, that's what they think, anyway. Susanna and the Countess know that the women are really the ones who are pulling the strings, ensuring a finale with multiple marriages and a properly chastened lord of the manor.

Radamisto

Handel's Radamisto set a new standard for Italian opera, a gorgeous and rarely heard work that was first commissioned to launch the London Royal Academy of Music. This musico-military spectacular celebrates the redemptive powers of love and fidelity in marriage, through a story of interlocking attempts at adultery among the ruling families of ancient Iberia.

Billy Budd

Five years after Peter Grimes, Benjamin Britten returned to sea sagas for Billy Budd, the tale of a seraphic young sailor's fall from grace. Based on Herman Melville's unpublished novel, Billy Budd is now recognized as one of the 20th Century's most dramatically powerful and thematically poignant operas.

Adriana Mater—American Premier

Adriana Mater reunites composer Kaija Saariaho, librettist Amin Maalouf and director Peter Sellers, whose L'Amour de loin was such a success here in 2002. Their new work takes place in an unnamed country at war, and its themes—revenge, forgiveness and redemption touch the consciousness in profound ways.

Tosca

The setting is historic Rome in June 1800.

A fierce political struggle is played out. The Queen's all powerful police, Scarpia, is determined to rid Rome of all traitors and in particular, the painter

Cavaradossi. A struggle of epic proportions between Tosca, who must save Cavaradossi and Scarpia to possess Rome's premiere opera diva. This is Puccini's elegant tale of intrigue, passion, betrayal and death.
