9. Lt Jennifer Garcia APD Community Engagement Unit

- This program got created over a year ago and started with school resources officers. They are working with fifteen to twenty schools. There are twenty-eight participating officers.
- There are twenty to twenty-five running the program
- Ambassador Program
 - Eighteen lateral officers are community liaisons for ten identifiable groups underrepresented in the department and didn't have a voice in the past. Members of those communities meet with the cadets and have lunch to talk about their experiences, and they don't tell them what they need from APD; instead, ask what they want from APD.

10. Terrence Green - Discusses his experiences with APD and working with the office of equity and inclusion. They got involved with social justice and organized memorials and protests. Rather than going straight to the police chief, the liaison is supposed to bridge the gap; if they see something or have an issue, they can call the liaison to be the line of communication.
