AGENDA

Mass school shootings are one of the most horrifying law-enforcement problems in America today. What causes students, ex-students or strangers to bring a weapon onto school property, and to take multiple innocent, young lives? How do we treat the symptoms before we get to the point of homicide? And exactly what is wrong with our schools?

1. Call to Order
2. Approval of February Minutes
3. Approval of Tonight's Agenda
4. NW Crime Report, Lt. David Saladin

5. Presentation of Topic,
  - a. Tonya Convington, of the City of Albuquerque’s Rapid Accountability Diversion program (RAD) will speak about her work mediating disputes with students and youthful low-level offenders. She works to eliminate the pipeline from first-offense to long prison sentences, and the retaliatory effects of crime that often stem from low level criminal activity. Tonya is a Trainer, Mediator, Community Health Worker and Health Educator. Tonya has been engaged in training, consulting and coaching on issues of diversity, equity and cross-cultural communication for three decades and is an experienced “cultural humility” trainer. She has skills in coalition building, program implementation, capacity building, facilitation, mediation and conflict resolution, development and consensus building. Tonya has conducted workshops and lectured on the subject of Cultural Humility across the country and abroad. Tonya was also instrumental in establishing the first Anti-Racism Day at the New Mexico Legislature.
  - b. Franklin Schargel will stop by to speak about his new book; “Preventing School Violence- A User’s Guide.” He will educate us about the major causes of School Violence, practical steps to stem it, and why the City of Albuquerque, and the State of New Mexico might be at risk in the near future. Franklin Schargel is a published author, motivational speaker, trainer, lifelong educator, and world traveler. Passionate about what he does, his work on dropout prevention, school leadership, and working with at-risk learners is known world-wide.
