Force per 1000 Calls

- FH: 1.3
- NE: 2.5
- NW: 1.1
- SE: 1.8
- SW: 0.8
- VA: 1.0

Force cases are now categorized by three levels. If a case involves multiple applications of force, it is categorized as the most serious at the case level. These counts are not considered final as investigations are continuously updated.

- Level 1 is force that is likely to cause only transitory pain, disorientation, or discomfort during its application as a means of gaining compliance. This includes techniques which are not reasonably expected to cause injury, do not result in actual injury, and are not likely to result in a complaint of injury (i.e., pain compliance techniques and resisted handcuffing). Pointing a firearm, beanbag shotgun, or 40 millimeter launcher at a subject, or using an ECW to "paint" a subject with the laser sight, as a show of force are reportable as Level 1 force. Level 1 force does not include interaction meant to guide, assist, or control a subject who is offering minimal resistance.

- Level 2 is force that causes injury, could reasonably be expected to cause injury, or results in a complaint of injury. Level 2 force includes use of an ECW, including where an ECW is fired at a subject but misses; use of a beanbag shotgun or 40 millimeter launcher, including where it is fired at a subject but misses; OC Spray application; empty hand techniques (i.e., strikes, kicks, takedowns, distraction techniques, or leg sweeps); and strikes with impact weapons, except strikes to the head, neck, or throat, which would be considered a Level 3 use of force.

- Level 3 is force that results in, or could reasonably result in, serious physical injury, hospitalization, or death. Level 3 force includes all lethal force; critical firearms discharges; all head, neck, and throat strikes with an object; neck holds; canine bites; three or more uses of an ECW on an individual during a single interaction regardless of mode or duration or an ECW application for longer than 15 seconds, whether continuous or consecutive; four or more strikes with a baton; any strike, blow, kick, ECW application, or similar use of force against a handcuffed subject; and uses of force resulting in a loss of consciousness.

Interoffice Memorandum

To: Harold J. Medina, Chief of Police
From: J. J. Griego, Deputy Chief, Management Services and Support Bureau
Subject: CPOAB letter dated August 12th, 2021

We received this letter on 04/13/22. The CPOAB requests that the “Force Review Board submit written explanations for their findings.” And also that a “Force Review Board representative present an explanation of the FRB findings and stand for questions…”

We can speak to generalities to the purpose and process of the FRB but providing specific logic behind each board members vote will not be possible. The FRB meeting was held on April 23rd, 2020. The members of the Board at that time were DCOS Ross, DC Medina, DC Gonzales, Commander Byrd, and Commander Duran. The only extant person on the Department is now Chief Medina who shared many of the concerns that the CPOAB had.

The FRB identified the concerns and a referral to Internal Affairs Force Division was made to address the concerns related to policy, tactics, training, equipment and supervision.

The policy quoted is “Paragraphs 25-4A, B, C, E” I am assuming this is a typo as the policy is 2-52. Below is what is to be believed to be the relevant policy sections that were in effect at the time.

What I can do is speak generally to the role of FRB and the process. It is important to note that issues or concerns related to policy, training, supervision, equipment or tactics, do not automatically render a use of force out of policy. It appears that the FRB recognized all of these deficiencies however when a subject points what is perceived as a firearm at Police Officers they are permitted to use force to defend themselves and others.

2-52-4 Use of Force Requirements

A. General Requirements

1. Policing at times requires that an officer exercise control of a violent or resisting subject to make an arrest or to protect the officer, other officers, or members of the community from risk of imminent harm. Clearly, not every potential violent confrontation can be de-escalated. However, officers do have the ability to impact the direction and the outcome of many situations they handle, based on their decision-making and the tactics they choose to employ. The officer shall consider and use, where appropriate, de-escalation techniques.
2. Officers should continually assess the situation in order to increase an officer’s ability to bring a situation to a safe, peaceful conclusion. This conclusion may be accomplished by using time, distance, information, isolation, teamwork, force array, coordination and other techniques, to maximize an officer’s advantage.

B. Assessing the Situation

The following questions help an officer assess the “totality of the circumstances,” i.e., the facts and conditions confronting an officer when making decisions. Officers should consider these questions when assessing a situation that may require use of force:

1. What resources can the officer use to de-escalate the situation or to minimize the need for the use of force?

2. Can the officer allow the person time to submit to arrest before using force?

3. Is the officer using the minimum amount of force necessary to carry out lawful objectives?

4. Is the person physically or mentally capable of complying with the officer’s commands?

5. Does the officer have an opportunity to utilize additional resources or other officers to bring the situation to a peaceful resolution?

6. What is the risk of bodily harm to the subject and/or officer as a result of the officer’s lawful use of force in light of the level of threat the subject posed to the officer or others?

7. Does the proximity of weapons allow the subject to access them?

8. What is the time available to an officer to make a decision? What efforts has the officer made to gain additional time?

9. What are the physical considerations for the officer, such as officer exhaustion or injury during a physical confrontation?

10. Are innocent bystanders present who could be harmed if force is or is not used?

11. Are there hostile bystanders present who are sympathetic to the subject?

C. De-escalation

1. Officers should look for opportunities to de-escalate the situation. When reasonable under the totality of circumstances and where it may be accomplished without increasing the risk of harm to the officer or others, officers should—

   a. gather information about the incident;

   b. assess the risks to the subject(s), officer(s) and general public;

   c. assemble resources;

   d. communicate and coordinate a response; and e. attempt to slow the momentum of the incident.

2. In their interaction with subjects, officers shall use advisements, warnings, verbal persuasion, and other tactics prior to escalating to the use of force, if feasible. Officers should recognize that they may be able to move to a more tactically sound position or to a position which allows greater distance between them and the subjects, in order to consider or use a greater variety of tactical options.

3. Officers are expected to recognize that their approach to a civilian interaction may influence whether a situation escalates to the need for use of force.
4. When a use of force is necessary, officers will assess each incident to determine, based on policy, training and experience, which use of force option will de-escalate or control the situation.

5. Supervisors will become involved as soon as practicable in the management of an overall response to potentially violent encounters by coordinating resources and officers' tactical actions. Supervisors should possess a good knowledge of tactics and ensure that officers under their supervision perform to Department standards.

6. A degree of force which may have been justified earlier in an encounter does not remain justified indefinitely. Force shall be de-escalated as resistance decreases.

E. Minimum Amount of Force

When force is necessary and objectively reasonable, officers shall strive to use the minimum amount of force that is feasible within the available range of objectively reasonable force options.

1. Officers need not start at the lowest level of force in every situation. Prior to using a particular force option, officers should evaluate their objectively reasonable options and select an option anticipated to minimize the level of injury to the subject and the officer while achieving the arrest or lawful objective.

2. While utilizing a particular force option, officers should continually assess whether the opportunity exists for them to safely de-escalate their level of force while still achieving the arrest or lawful objectives.

3. Whether a particular use of force is the minimum amount of force necessary must be objectively judged from the perspective of a reasonable officer on the scene, rather than from 20/20 hindsight. The objective determination of "minimal" must account for the fact that officers are often forced to make split-second judgments, in circumstances that are tense, uncertain, and rapidly evolving.
