Update on Goals Forums Report at 12:05 pm:

Justine Freeman gave an update on the submission of the Goals Forums Report. It was submitted via hard copy and email to all City Councilors and their staff, to the Mayor and Executive Team, and posted in English and Spanish on the IPC's webpage. The Commission received positive feedback and gratitude from the Mayor and decided it wants to reach out to Councilor Tammy Fiebelkorn since a good portion of the community input we received was from her district.

Review indicators at 12:10 pm:

Catrien de Boer led the commissioners through the indicators based on their previous voting in preparation for the Albuquerque Progress Report (APR). Catrien also reviewed indicators that data is not available for and that will continue to be researched for future reports. Commissioners voted to include both a status column comparing ABQ to its peers and a trend column comparing ABQ to itself in past years. The IPC agreed that in the long-term it wants to work on a column that shows an absolute value for where it wants ABQ to be or whether the City has identified a goal in that area. The Commission decided that although the FBI warns against comparing crime statistics across cities to do so in the 2022 APR, possibly with an equity disclaimer. The IPC identified a number of projects it wants to work on after the APR including strategic planning, developing a data dashboard, improving community engagement, developing an equity lens and an environmental justice lens, as well as the new column for where it wants to see ABQ in relation to each indicator.

Review APR outline at 12:55 pm:

Justine Freeman shared the proposed outline for the 2022 APR and made adjustments based on the Commissioners' input.

Closing and next steps at 1:00 pm:
