DEVELOPMENT AREAS WITH ACTIVITY CENTERS & TRANSPORTATION CORRIDORS

NOTE: This map represents a general policy direction for land use and transportation development in activity centers and transportation corridors over an extended period of time. Each center may undergo further analysis that will identify design elements, appropriate uses, transportation service, and other details of implementation as appropriate. Boundaries of centers as shown are not official, but merely indicate where non-residential use and/or zoning meet the edge of single-family residential use and/or zoning, and where interrelated activities exist within walking distance of one another. While some corridors and centers may see significant change in a period of 5-10 years, others may experience much longer term development.
