The need to utilize a highly disciplined, well trained and well equipped specialized unit in violent confrontations, hostage situations, armed and barricaded suspect encounters, high risk arrests or the execution of search and arrest warrants in barricaded, armed suspects, high risk encounters, and the execution of dangerous search or arrest warrants, is patently obvious and reasonable.

2. Procedures

The CNT will employ reasonable and safe techniques in an effort to de-escalate the crisis situation requiring a tactical activation or response to subjects who are in crisis in an elevated position, i.e. threatening to jump from a bridge or building where a full tactical activation would not meet the threat assessment or matrix. The techniques will include, among other things, crisis and individual assessment, verbal de-escalation techniques, crisis/suicide intervention, active listening, and non-threatening, non-judgmental communication intended to reduce tension, lower rising emotions and calm the subject and crisis situation.

However, if exigent circumstances exist where life-saving measures must be employed immediately, such as during hostage rescue, emergency assault, or active shooter, non-EOD tactical officers may assist. These officers must have been properly trained and certified by EOD in explosive breaching. They may utilize the appropriate explosive breaching charge, after advising the Tactical Commander and the EOD Sergeant in each circumstance.
