TIPS FOR CALLING 911

- When you dial 911, the system directs your call to a public safety dispatch center. These public safety dispatch centers are operated by your local police, fire or sheriff's department and staffed by highly-trained personnel.
- It is important that you stay on the line and tell the 911 personnel what help is needed and where it is needed.
- 911 personnel are trained to ask you questions that are helpful in determining which agency (Fire, Police, Sherriff) should respond and how quickly. By answering these questions, you are helping them provide the best possible response.
- There are no charges for dialing 911 to request assistance, but there may be charges for services provided, such as ambulance transportation. Those charges could result regardless of the number dialed.
If you have a cellular phone, you can dial 911 and your call will be answered by 911 personnel. There is no charge for a 911 call from a cellular phone.
- If it is not a life-threatening emergency, look up the seven-digit number for the agency in the phone book. In the city of Albuquerque, the number is 242-COPS (2677).
- All police, fire and emergency medical services will respond to your needs as quickly as possible. If these agencies are busy, a response will be provided in the order of urgency.

HOW TO MAKE AN EMERGENCY CALL TO 911

- Stay calm. Do not get excited. Take a deep breath.
- Dial 911 right away. Do not wait for someone else to call.
- Tell the person who answers the phone exactly what is wrong.
- Tell them the exact address where help is needed. Be sure to give FULL address, including any apartment number, suite number, space number, etc.
- Tell them the phone number you are calling from. If you are not at the same address as the emergency, tell them the address where you are.
Tell them your name.
- DO NOT HANG UP until the person on the phone tells you to do so. They may need to ask you more questions to help the fire, police or ambulance find you.

EMERGENCIES:

One of the most important differences between landlines and cell phones is how they function during emergencies.

- A cell phone will be useful during emergencies that arise when you're away from home, such as car accident. Even if you choose to have a landline, you may prefer to purchase a prepaid cell phone, just in case.
- One of the drawbacks to cell phone is that your address is not visible to the emergency operator. At best, the cell phone will list your latitude and longitude, which are not always as easy to find as an address. Depending on the service you use, your telephone number might not be visible to the operator, either.
- What will happen if your power goes out? Your cell phone will continue to operate as long as it has a battery, but what if the power outage last for an extended period of time? One solution may be to check your area's laws regarding telephone service. Some areas require telephone providers to allow resident to dial 911 from their landline even if the resident is not paying for service.
- Last but not least, consider who will be using the phone. Some parents believe that it's easier to teach small children to dial 911 on a landline phone than on a cell phone. If you're caring for an elderly person, consider whether they will find it easier to dial a cell phone or a landline phone in case of an emergency. You may want to get a special cell Phone created specifically for senior citizens.
